

“The goal of Participatory Medicine is active involvement and collaboration by patients, professionals, and caregivers, in order to improve outcomes, reduce medical errors, increase patient satisfaction, and reduce the cost of care.”

Guiding Principles

- Patients and caregivers as actively engaged in their health and health care as possible.
- Health care professionals highly effective at supporting and integrating patient contributions into practice.
- Collaboration among patients, caregivers and health care professionals.
- Timely unrestricted access to any and all patient medical information to ensure full partnership of patients and caregivers with professionals.

MEMBERSHIP BENEFITS:

Networking and Partnering

Use our Searchable Member Directory to find others practicing and promoting participatory medicine.

Take advantage of Networking Opportunities through our online forum and face-to-face events to connect with members offering and seeking advice, industry insights, or partners.

The Latest Thought Leadership

Read and contribute to our content via the Journal of Participatory Medicine, our e-Patients.net blog, and our website.

Discussion Forum, Get Answers from Membership
